By James Dourney
The photography is outstanding and the stories give insight into places that are seen, but the history known to a few. A great read and a keeper for sure. It is a great addition to any Florida History collection or for anyone that enjoys history and photos of forgotten places.

By Artimus Freeman
I have live in South Florida all of my life (45 years so far), David Bulit has captured this area like no one has before. Simply a treasure of Miami's unknown and forgotten wonders. A MUST HAVE!

Miami architecture is world renowned, but many historic treasures have been forgotten. The Richmond Naval Air Station was a blimp base destroyed by hurricane in 1945. A Cold War missile base lies covered in graffiti. Homestead's old Aerojet complex was originally used in the testing and construction of experimental rockets but was slowly demolished as part of a project to revitalize the Everglades. The Miami Marine Stadium was declared unsafe after Hurricane Andrew in 1992 and stands abandoned today. Author and "Abandoned Florida" blogger David Bulit revives the history and secrets of the Magic City's vanishing gems.

About the Author Born and raised in Miami, Florida, David Bulit began urban exploring in 2009. In 2010, he started his website "Abandoned Florida," which aims to document abandoned and forgotten places throughout the state of Florida as well as promoting and sharing the work of local artists, photographers and film makers with similar interests. You can visit it at abandonedfl.com.
