

[DOWNLOAD] Man-Made Future: Planning, Education and Design in Mid-20th Century Britain

Man-Made Future: Planning, Education and Design in Mid-20th Century Britain

From Routledge

Download PDF | ePub | DOC | audiobook | ebooks*

Download

Read Online

#3396001 in eBooks 2006-12-19 2006-12-19 File Name: B000SEGH64 | File size: 51.Mb

From Routledge : Man-Made Future: Planning, Education and Design in Mid-20th Century Britain before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Man-Made Future: Planning, Education and Design in Mid-20th Century Britain:

0 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Really satisfiedBy paola zanottoPerfect conditions, like new! All the pages are present and no notes or scratches have been made on the book.

This anthology of essays by a group of distinguished scholars investigates post-1945 city planning in Britain; not from a technical viewpoint, but as a polemical, visual and educational phenomenon, shifting the focus of scholarly interest towards the often-neglected emotional and aesthetic aspects of post-war planning. Each essay is grounded in original archival research and sheds new light on this critical era in the development of modern town planning. This collection is a valuable resource for architectural, social and urban historians, as well as students and researchers offering new insights into the development of the mid-twentieth century city.

'The essays ... are fascinating if only because the period of certainty and decisive action that they describe is so different from town planning today.' — The Architectural Record
The Author Iain Boyd Whyte is Professor of Architectural History at the University of Edinburgh. He has been a Research Fellow of the Alexander von Humboldt-Stiftung, a Getty Scholar and, more recently, a Senior Program Officer at the Getty Foundation, Los Angeles. He is a fellow of the Royal Society of Edinburgh and has served as a Trustee of the National Galleries of Scotland.